BIOGRAPHY

Anna Howard ACS

Anna Howard ACS started in the Australian Film Industry in 1980. After studying cinematography at North Sydney TAFE, she worked on TV drama, feature films, documentaries and TV Commercials as a camera assistant.

In 1995 Anna began working as a cinematographer. As a Director of Photography she has worked with many top directors including Ray Lawrence, Gillian Armstrong and Garth Davis.

Anna is known for her subtle but expressive lighting and her ability to work collaboratively with actors.

She worked on the award-winning Australian TV series Rake in 2010 and the next year she was nominated for Best Cinematography in the Film Critics Circle of Australia Awards for the film South Solitary, directed by Shirley Barrett.

Her cinematography in Errors of the Human Body was widely praised, Dan Collacott of Liberation Frequency noted, "The film is beautifully shot within the clinical and snowy surrounds of The Max Planck Institute in Dresden...full of hauntingly sterile shades of white and grey",

For the past 26 years Anna has worked on many films, documentaries and commercials in Australia and overseas, winning numerous awards for her lighting and images.

Some credits include: Aftertaste (2021), Girls Can't Surf (2020) Machine (2018), Rabbit (2018), Errors of the Human Body (2012), South Solitary (2010), Rake (2010), Marking Time (2003), Women He's Undressed (2015), Girl in a Mirror (2005)

Anna Howard ACS is a respected cinematographer and a campaigner for equal opportunities.

She is currently a senior member of the ACS Diversity Committee. She frequently sits on the ACS judging, and Accreditation panels.

Anna was awarded ACS Accreditation in 2004 and Inducted into the ACS Hall of Fame in 2019
